

CURRENT VACANCIES

MHP Communications is hiring across all levels in Hong Kong and Singapore

MHP Communications, one of the fastest growing strategic communications agencies in the Asia Pacific region, is seeking talented and entrepreneurial individuals with 5-10 years' experience to join the firm at its Hong Kong or Singapore offices. Candidates will be considered for a number of positions including Account Manager, Senior Account Manager, Associate Director and Director.

MHP Communications in Focus

MHP Communications is an award-winning agency built for the networked age, applying the new rules of influence to solve complex business problems.

We deliver highly effective and impactful communications programmes by combining insight with sector expertise, underpinned by a strong understanding of the media and business landscapes. Please visit www.mhpc.com for further information.

The firm is built around a simple proposition: by employing the right people to do smart thinking, we deliver tangible results and business benefits. We work with a diverse set of clients, ranging from the world's leading asset managers and insurance companies to disruptive technology firms that are trying to reshape the way commerce is carried out.

Our expertise spans corporate communications, financial services and capital markets communications, brand PR, media relations, CSR and sustainability and technology.

MHP Communications has 170 consultants working in London, Hong Kong, Singapore and Sydney, and is part of Engine, a global marketing and communications group operating across four continents with over 2500 staff. Thanks to Engine's unique collaborative model, we work closely with our sister agencies.

What Are We Looking For?

We are looking for creative, energetic and experienced communications professionals to join our regional Asia Pacific team, based in Hong Kong and Singapore. We want all our colleagues to participate in shaping client strategies and contributing to the growth and management of the agency business in Asia Pacific.

Ideal candidates will have prior experience at a corporate, and/or financial communications and/or investor relations consultancy, preferably having worked with financial and professional services and technology clients, including fintech organisations. However, we think flexibly - candidates that have worked in-house in external and internal communications and marketing teams will also be considered, as will business journalists.

You will be a polished professional with impeccable written and verbal communications skills. Experience of having worked in Hong Kong or Singapore would be preferred, but it is not essential.

New Business development is an important element across all roles and you will be required to develop new opportunities and assist on pitch development as well as start to generate your own proposals and leads. You will be confident overseeing client programmes, have good budget management skills, and be able to build strong relationships based on trust and respect.

Requirements

- Bachelor's degree at a minimum (a plus if it is in related fields such as communications, English, journalism, politics, economics or business)
- Excellent command of the English language with a flair for writing
- Good interpersonal skills
- Capable of multi-tasking on multiple projects – managing priorities and meeting deadlines, while maintaining meticulous attention to detail
- Creative thinker with a good understanding of the business world, financial terms and transactions, legal and regulatory news, and general news knowledge
- Native English speakers will be considered, but proficiency in Cantonese and Mandarin would be an advantage

What We Offer

An opportunity to work at a fast-growing agency where you can have genuine responsibility and if you chose, autonomy to create new products and services that are aligned with the evolution of the communications industry and changing client needs.

At MHP, we also offer a collaborative and stimulating work environment as well as competitive remuneration, attractive benefits and we will assist gaining your right to work.

If you want to work for the agency of the future, not the past; are bored and feeling underappreciated and want to have influence over your career - then come and join us!

To apply please contact James Hill – James.Hill@mhpc.com